WORK OF SCHOOL BOARD.

Adoption of By-Laws and Appointments Made. After a session which lasted from quarter of 11 to 3 o'clock yesterday the board of education took a recess until ha'f-past 7 o'clock. The evening meeting continued to a late hour and progress was made in com pleting the organization. The next meeting will be held Saturday at 1 p.m., and Tues day of each week thereafter at half-past 4 o'clock will be the regular meeting time.

At the opening of the proceedings last evening Mr. Geo. H. Harries, in behalf of J. H. Chamberlain, director of the manual training school, presented to the president of the board a gavel, which was the handi-work of one of the first-year pupils of the High School.

of events recently sent out by the French managers state that the preliminary heats will take place next Saturday and the final heats Sunday. It may be imagined what has been the effect of such an announcement at this time.

Everybody here feels that it is a most contemptible trick. Not a single American university would have sent a team or have been represented by one had it not been definitely announced that the games would not be held on a Sunday. The Princeton and Chicago managers had definite instructions from their faculties not to arrange for the trip except the change of date was made, and others would have taken the same course had it not been that A. G. Spalding, the American director of sports, received word from the French officials stating that the games would not take place on the Sabbath. This letter to Mr. Spalding is very definite. The University of Pennsylvania manager has it, and I have seen it.

Pennsylvania manager nas it, and seen it.

Every pressure is being brought to bear on the French officials by the managers of the American teams to have a change made. Even at this late date it is likely that the American teams will unitedly refuse to compete if the French officials persist in carrying out what seems to us a very nasty piece of business—to use no stronger term.

The Herald says: When it was announced early in the spring that the French authorities governing the athletic games at the Paris exposition had arranged for Sunday contests many American athletes who had planned to be among the competitors declared that under such circumstances they would not go abroad.

The attitude of the Americans in the matter was communicated to A. G. Spalding, American director of athletics at the exposition, and through him to the French authorities.

In a letter to Mr. Spalding early in May the French officials stated that they recognized the manner in which Sunday is respected in the United States, and that in order to have the pleasure of the participation of the Americans, they would agree, whenever possible, to change the finals falling on Sunday to a weekday.

The letter to Mr. Spalding was followed on May 25 by an announcement from the French authorities that as a concession to the Americans, the sports, which were scheduled to begin on Sunday, July 15, would intsead commence on Saturday, July 14, and be continued on the following Tuesday and Thursday. The finals in which Americans were entered were to be put ahead, and the games were to conclude on the following Saturday, if possible.

St. Louis has apparently got started at last. With McGraw and Heidrick out of the game the team is chalking up victories right off the reel.

last got started. Keeler Burkett, Clarke and Kelley were hovering around the .100 mark for some time, but the last two weeks' work with the stick has sent them up into work with the stick has sent them up into the aristocratic .300 company.

It has been published all over the circuit for some time past that Magnate Freedman, instead of lecturing his players for not winning games, called them together and gave them to understand that he didn't care whether they won or not. As a result the games played by the Giants have been stupendous "bluffs," nothing more. Now and then when a team makes fun of the Giants, as the Pittsburgs did, they agree among themselves to play ball, and as a result they drive their opponents to tail timber. "Could" (blids continues

"Cupid" Childs continues to astonish every one by his great fielding work around hero's throne.

There is every reason for believing that Meekin will not be of much use to Pittsburg this year. Manager Frank Selee of the Boston club is one of the best judges in the business. He made no attempt to defend himself when criticised for releasing Meekin, as it is his habit never to "knock" a player, but results justify the action that he took. nero's throne.

"Don't you ever think we are rusty or quitting," says Chick Stahl. "Look how we came up from the bottom! They can't say it's old age, either. Herman Long is about as old as any one, and see the games he's playing! Same old Flying Dutchmangoes after 'em, and gets 'em, too. Collins is playing his regular game, and that's good enough for anybody."

enough for anybody."

Keeler was knocked out at Cincinnati as cleanly as any prize fighter just after crossing the rubber on a home run drive. It was a peculiar accident. Umpire Emsile was trying to get out of the way of a had throw to the plate, and Keeler bumped his jaw into Bob's upraised elbow. The players claim that Keeler was down the limit. In addition to getting three hits, Wallace put up a remarkably fine game at short. His catch, shift and put-out of Schriver on McGann's 'wild throw in the seventh inning in Sunday's game was beyond praise. Ely hit hard to McGann, who hurried the throw to second. It was very high and Schriver was close to the bag. Wallace leaped high in the air, got the ball in his glove, switched it to the other hand as he came down and touched the runner, a truly remarkable play. But he makes that kind every day.

"What sort of a hold has this Mr. Freedman on the magnates," asked a Brooklyn player, "that they allow him to do anything he pleases in base ball and never a word is said? If the players of any other team in the league would be howling for his scalp 'in the interest of clean base ball.' In the Doyle case I doubt if anything ever will be done, simply because he works for Mr. Freedman."

Doesn't the story given out by Selee, that Duffy was left at home at his own request, look a triffe threadbare? Was it to let Duffy down easy? It looks that way. The fact that Duffy was left at home shows that he is considered the fifth wheel to the wagon, and is being carried on the team merely for sentimental reasons. No club ever carried a captain on the bench who was able to do work. Then, there is Pittenger, a first-class pitcher, farmed when he could be used on the team. No wonder the club loses.—Boston Heraid.

"Chicago has a staff of pitchers that is very hard to beat," remarked Tom Daly of the Brooklyns. "Griffith is the most artis.

the club loses.—Boston Herald.

"Chicago has a staff of pitchers that is very hard to beat," remarked Tom Daly of the Brooklyns. "Griffith is the most artistic pitcher that ever lived. He is an artist at the game. He makes his work easy by using judgment. It does not seem any more trouble for him to pitch a game than it is to sit in a rocking chair. "Callahan, Taylor and Garvin are the other three who are tough propositions to solve." Just now they are all in fine form, "and the team that beats them will know that it has been in a game. When a team has such pitchers it does not require much hitting to win games."

I don't think that this American Association scheme has been given up as some would have us believe. I have found out that when McGraw was here with the St. Louis team, he and Tommy McCarthy were around town together almost all the time. The two paid a visit to Charles River Park. This is the place where the Boston team of that league was to be located, and McGraw and McCarthy looked it all over and held long and earnest conversations on the matter. McCarthy is one of the men interested in the management of the park this year. It is said that they have a five years' lease. From what I could glean the Boston end is ripe for the league to get to going next year, and I should be very much surprised if McGraw were not deeply interested. He is not in base ball for fun, of course, but they all want a slice of the magnate gag. With Baltimore in and Boston, there can be no question but that the new league, Anson's or not, will have two good clites to make up the eastern circuit. The league has got a good way to knock, and the best way is to put the Brooklyn team into Washington. That will break up that possibility of Baltimore and Washington for the opposition league.—Boston correspondent Sporting News.

AMONG THE FIGHTERS.

Gans Whips Griffe in Eight Rounds. Young Griffo, the Australian, showed up well in the first couple of rounds of his fight with Joe Gans at Coney Island last night, but his year or two of dissipation began to tell, and in the eighth round Gans had him at his mercy; and Referee White ness had the colored man guessing. His face was a mass of cuts, and still he kept rushing and swinging blindly, hoping to outcome of this fight was a serious matter to him.

After Johnny White had given the men their instructions, they started out at a rapid pace, and the clover manner in which Griffo blocked Gans, lead brought forth applause, and when be copped the Baltimorean a solid left awing on the eye, jarring Gans to his feet, the house grew wild with excitement.

In the second Griffo slipped, but was up like a shot and back at work. Griffo fought like a fiend, but his head work was away off, and the dazzling blows of Gans were beginning to tell their story.

In the fifth and sixth Griffo landed some good ones in Gans' stomach. Gans returned them with interest, and the beginning of the end was in sight.

In the eighth Griffo was staggering aimlessly around the ring and had no idea of where he was, so White stopped the execution.

The heavy batters of the league Lave at ponent, but in his eagerness to gain a knockout he left himself open and was sent down for the count just as the round end-ed. This seemed to weaken the New Englander, and he was rather shaky in the fourth. He never faitered, however, but kept boring in for the body and had Root clinching to escape punishment. Near the end of the round O'Brien was overbalanced from a wild swing, and Root knocked him through the ropes. He got back before time was up and had a shade the better of a fierce mixup as the round ended.

In the fifth and sixth rounds Root got his left hand working and smothered O'Brien with jabs. O'Brien never let up, however, but kept on the aggressive and appeared to be willing to take anything Root could send to get a chance for a knockout. Toward the end of the round Root went down from a hard swing. He jumped up quickly, however, and had the better of the rest of the round. O'Brien's poor condition began to tell on him in the last round and he slowed up perceptibly. Root landed almost at will.

Immediately after the signing of the Fitz simmons-Ruhlin agreement articles were signed by Fitzsimmons and Thomas Sharkey to fight on August 25, or any day between the 25th and 31st should Fitzsimmons incur any injury in his fight with Ruhlin.

incur any injury in his fight with Ruhlin. The fight will be for twenty-five rounds, and the agreement in all respects is similar to that for the other fight.

The articles of agreement for the Flizsimmons-Ruhlin bout call for a boxing contest of twenty-five rounds, under Marquis of Queensbury rules, before the cub offering the best inducements. Bids for the contest are left open for one week. Charles White is to be the referee and Harry Beecher was made the final stakeholder, with whom each side today deposited $2.500 forfeit money.

Sharkey and his manager attended to see if a match could not be arranged for Sharkey with Ruhlin or Fliz before the boxing law should become null and void. Flizsimkey with Ruhlin or Fitz before the boxing law should become null and void. Fitzsimmons was very courteous to Sharkey.

When Sharkey leaned toward Fitzsimmons and asked for a fight after the contest with Ruhlin, Fitz replied:

"Yes. Win or lose, I'll fight you." Then the second set of articles was prepared and signed. The bids for it will be open to August 13. A referee was not named.
